

The Green Roots Project

EPIC The Irish Emigration Museum

Together, We Grow

An exhibition celebrating the growth of Ireland's vibrant and diverse cultures

New Communities Partnership (NCP) in collaboration with EPIC The Irish Emigration Museum and The Green Roots Project are inviting you to an exhibition of visual art celebrating the continued growth of a diverse and multicultural Ireland. Taking place at St. Patrick's weekend in the CHQ building on the 18th and 19th of March from 12pm to 5pm.

The exhibition will bring together 14 artists from diverse backgrounds who will shine a light on Ireland's vibrant multitude of cultures, promoting and representing inclusion in the Irish Art industry. The exciting line up of artists include painters, printmakers, street artists and glass-workers such as: Kate Power, Shane Ha, Kerry Ann Gorman, Niall.OL, Helen O'Sullivan and many more.

As part of The Green Roots Project, during these two days you will also have a chance to see an exhibition featuring work by primary school students from across the country, who participated in the Grow Your Green Cloak campaign. You can also explore what it means to be Irish with workshops and performances from EPIC The Irish Emigration Museum, which must be booked in advance on the EPIC website www.epicchq.com/whats-on.

New Communities Partnership is an independent national network of more than 150 immigrant-led groups comprising 65 nationalities in Ireland. In addition to being the largest migrant-led network in Ireland, NCP also offers a number of services that assist migrant individuals, families and groups with social inclusion, child protection, education, training, employment, cultural understanding and citizenship.

EPIC The Irish Emigration Museum believes that Irish history should never be a long list of names and dates, it should be an experience. You won't find leprechauns or pots of gold here, but you will discover that what it means to be Irish expands far beyond the borders of Ireland through the stories of Irish emigrants who became scientists, politicians, poets, artists and even outlaws all over the world. Swipe through video galleries, challenge yourself with motion sensor quizzes, dance in the footsteps of legends, listen to remastered audio from 100 years ago and watch videos that bring Irish history to life.

The Green Roots Project is a social enterprise with the goal of encouraging responsible celebrations, both individually and in our communities. Creating opportunities to forge a link between How We Celebrate and tangible Climate Action. Over St. Patrick's weekend, we invite you to get back to your roots and consider what being green really means. Join our campaign to celebrate all things Irish by DOING something green.

For more information

Sevak Khachatryan | NCP | 0851588400 | sevak@newcommunities.ie

Kate Power | 0870646038 | katepower1@hotmail.com

Shannon Wilson | EPIC | 0834069468 | swilson@epicchq.com

Claire Anne Tobin | The Green Roots Project | info@thegreenrootsproject.ie